Instructions

1. Place a fancy stone inside the prong setting on one end of the bracelet. Use chain nose pliers to gently press the prongs down, working on opposite corners. Repeat for the other end of the bracelet.
2. Cut an 8" length of belting lace. Place the lace through one end of the bracelet so that it folds back onto itself on the inside surface of the bracelet. Use glue to tack it down.
3. Weave the leather over, around and through the "frame" of the bracelet to create the woven herringbone effect.
4. At the end of the bracelet, weave the cord to the inner surface, fold the cord back onto itself and glue it into place.

Variation: you can also use belting lace to add dimension to prong-set rings. Use glue to tack the leather end to the outside of the cup, then wind it carefully into a spiral around the ring. Glue sparingly to hold it in place.
